

Rick Treach, EdD, CPA

Adjunct Faculty

Email: rtreach@georgefox.edu

I began my teaching career in 2010 as an adjunct while completing my doctoral work. My teaching has centered on leadership, accounting, and biblical studies classes for degree completion and graduate students. I understand successful application to be the evidence of learning, so I stress practical application in my classes and provide real-life examples from my business and ministry experience.

Academic Background

- EdD, Organizational Leadership, Indiana Wesleyan University
- MS, Accounting, University of Connecticut
- MA, Leadership Studies/Ministry, Lincoln Christian Seminary
- BS, Business Administration-Accounting Option, California State University, Fresno

Expertise and Interests

Classes that I have taught over the years include: Innovation and Leadership, Theory and Practice of Leadership, Accountability in Leadership, Global Managerial Accounting, Biblical Perspectives, Jesus in the Christian Community, Adult Development and Identity Formation, Biblical Interpretation and Teaching, and Organizational Leadership Development. Ethics is an area of interest for me. I am currently researching the effect of ethics of continuing education on California CPAs.

Outside the Classroom

I enjoy spending time with my wife, adult children, and grandkids whenever our schedules allow. I played water polo in high school and at Fresno State and now play masters' water polo and referee high school and age group water polo games. I am a lifelong Chicago Cubs fan and regularly schedule family time at Wrigley Field or ballparks in California when the Cubs or their AAA affiliate are on the West Coast.
