

The Position of Resident Assistant

Resident Assistants (RAs) are employees of the Student Life Department. As a member of the Student Life staff, the Resident Assistant is expected to strive to create and maintain an effective community within their living area. The position requires good judgment, energy, commitment, care, self-discipline, knowledge of campus resources, sensitivity to cultural diversity, and common sense. George Fox intends to offer the RA a program that combines intensive training in combination with practical experience in the areas of peer advising and referral, confrontation, personal development, programming, interpersonal relating, and administrative responsibilities. Student Life expects RAs to establish and maintain credibility and rapport with residents and fellow staff members. This type of impact on the community comes from the demonstration of personal character and integrity founded in Christian commitment.

Resident Assistants are supervised by an Area Coordinator who reports to the Associate Dean of Students. As employees of George Fox University, RAs are perceived as representatives of the university in their relationships and contacts both on and off campus. RAs are expected to uphold university standards as outlined in the Student Life Handbook.
